llth, Lyons:

(To Ganteaume.) A message from Cadiz of the £9th states that Admiral Gravina in ready to .sail with 8 ship$_t$s and £ frigates, which will bring the fleet of Admiral Villeneuve up to £0 of the line. You will find 8 Spanish and 4 French ships at Perrol: I expect, therefore, that you can ntart from the point of concentration with 50 line of battle ships. The destinies of the world are; in your hands,

(To Vice-Admiral Ver Huell.) I intend to concentrate, the Dutch flotilla at Arnbleteuse. The hour of glory w perhap.s on the point of striking; it is all a matter of a few chances, of a few incidents.

£()th, Stupinigi:

(To l)ecn\s.) Admiral Kelson has once more bwjn taken in about our fleet. 1 nin Ix'ginning to feel a little easier about it. You will nee that Admiral Ville-wiuve is not under instructions to return immediately, but to wait thirty-five day8 «o that the Brent fleet may Imvn tuna enough to join him. By Heaven! utir them up!

JWd. (To Madame A/fr*.) Mr. Jerome ikmstparta bM arrived at Lisbon with the woman with whom ht in living. I have ordered this prodigal mm to Milan. MIKH Patterson, who is with him, ha* prudently got her brother with her an an escort. 1 havt* ortlert*d her mmt biwtk to America, I Hhall trent tht* boy harnlily if, in th<* ont* interview I give him, h« nhow* himwlf unworthy of his* family and wi«h«« to contin«« his ItaiHtm. Unlexs hi* in diapaiHHl tt) WIJMS out the dishonour he UAH utttwhed tc» my name in tilmnduning his flag and his nationality for an unworthy woman, I uhali wjuih ray handbi of him, and per-